i++) Video Game News with Jason

- World of Warcraft
 - Havoc Demon Hunters, Guardian Druids, Brewmaster Monks and Fury Warrior will have a few PvP tuning changes made in the future.
 - World Quest Assistant addon is still good just requires more clicks.
 - If you like the lootz you get from invasions then you'll probably want to download the Legion Invasion Timer keeping informed on upcoming invasions.
 - New Mythic Keystone changes
 - Depletion mechanic is being removed.
 - Completing the run in time gives a random dungeon 1-3 levels higher which is normal
 - Not making the time will give a random dungeon that 1 level lower.
 - If you don't complete the dungeon at all you'll get a key for the same dungeon 1 level lower.
 - Testing:
 - No longer receiving additional chests for speed.
 - Chest will contain 2 items and an AP item.
 - If you beat the timer there will be a third item in the chest.
- Steam is updating its gifting policies. If you're in a different region where prices differ more then you won't be able to gift the item. This could be deal a severe blow to sites like G2A that where sellers were taking advantage of the pricing differences.
- YouTubers are having issues monetizing their content especially when they talk about games dealing with wars like Call of Duty. PrestigelsKey with 1 million subs wasn't able to monetize a recent video of his because his video was denied due to it being “inappropriate for advertising”. This was caused by the backlash of ads showing up on racist videos.

- PC makers will be shipping Windows 10 mixed reality headsets this holiday quarter. So expect to see VR being a big thing for Christmas gifts this year.

i++) April's D&D & Magic the Gathering News

 - - Deck Builder coming soon!

i++) Jason's Techy Talk

- DARPA is planning on hacking the human brain to let us “upload” skillz. They announced a new program called Targeted Neuroplasticity Training (TNT) which aims to explore safe neurostimulation methods for activating synaptic plasticity, which is the brain's ability to alter the connecting points between neurons which is what it does when learning. Hopefully by subjecting the nervous system to a workout regimen will enable the brain to learn more quickly and in the end skills could be “uploaded” to brains.
- Aspirin may prevent cancer from spreading shows new research.
- The Apple Watch outsold every other wearable last quarter.
- Walmart wants to put sensors on everything so it can automatically order you stuff.
